

ABSTRACT

A system, method and data structure for testing a web location including a web site or web service. A test generator or user generates an XML test case and a driver interprets the XML test case into an http request to be sent to the web location as a test.